Welcome to Open UToronto!

Your Gateway to Open Resources & Projects
@ The University of Toronto

NEW -> U of T launches online archives

What is Open?
Open most often refers to the idea of sharing freely available content, and by extension the open or collective production of that content.

Open UToronto is a University of Toronto initiative that promotes the discovery, use, creation and sharing of open content, resources and courses.

QUICK NAVIGATION TIP: We hope you find navigating our site intuitive. We've divided up the site in to five sections.

FIND helps you find open resources and courses created here at the University of Toronto.

CREATE is the place to start if you are a member of the University of Toronto and you are thinking about creating an open resource or course.

STUDY will lead you to helpful information on pursuing formal studies at our University.

Use the GLOBAL section to find out more about other open projects and organizations beyond the University of Toronto (including access to open resources and courses hosted elsewhere).

And of course, the ABOUT section will give you additional background on Open UToronto.

Thanks for visiting us!

The metaphor of the “journey”

The screenshot shows a web page from the University of Toronto Learning Portal. The header includes the university logo and name, and navigation links for 'My Page', 'Community', 'Content', and 'System Admin'. The main content area features a welcome message for the 'Delhi Darbar' course, explaining its purpose as an intellectual gathering for researchers. It includes a paragraph about the historical meaning of 'darbar' and a paragraph about the course's periodic gatherings. Below the text is a painting depicting a traditional Indian courtly scene with many people seated on the floor in a grand, arched room.

 Welcome to the Delhi Darbar!

Welcome to the Delhi Darbar, the intellectual levée of all the Researcher Guilds in our team! While in the Cairo Café, we work closely with others on projects similar to our own, the Delhi Darbar is a space in which we will interact with all the other guilds on the journey with us.

The word darbar has meant different things in various times and places. An example of one such darbar can be seen in the painting below. Our Research Team's Delhi Darbar is where we will gather online every few weeks to watch and listen to thought-provoking orations of some of the world's greatest living thinkers, for example, and discuss how these might be applied to our team's goals and our own aspirations. When we have all settled into our Researcher Guilds, an announcement will be posted declaring when the first darbar to be held.

Through our periodic gatherings in the darbar, we will learn why a whole is much greater than the sum of its parts!

Open Publishing

- Partnership between library and OVPR
- Profiles faculty research, interests and activities
- Lists faculty publications, links to full-text
- Integrated with T-Space, allowing for work to be profiled in Focus and archived in T-Space
